The World's London corespondent telegraphs.

"It does not appear, that the Prussians are in any great force directly before Paris. Their main body seems to be stretched in a kind of semi-circle from Williers Cotteret, on the morth-cast, to Melun and Pontainbleau, on the south-cast of the capital, and from Chateau Thierry, in the rear of Meaux, on the railway to Troyes. The resolute refusal of Soissons to surrender certainly embarasses their operations for the time.

The Reported Escape from Metz. "There is a curious rumor of the escap f Marshal Canrobert from Metz and of his advance upon Sedan and Mezieres, menacing Rheims and Laon, and the Prussian flank. It is not expected that the Prussians will attempt for some days to begin a serious homburdment of the works at Paris.

Matters at Paris. "Numbers of women and children are still permitted to leave Paris." The gas has been cut off, but it is used so little in the private houses in Paris that it makes comparatively much less trouble than was expected. The railroad to Lyons has been cut by the French authorities be-tween Berey and Charenton, and some splendid bridges destroyed. Many of the Paris journals are moving their offices to Tours, among them D Union and *La Ga-*zette de France, but the chief papers are still to be published in the Capital.
